Sierra Leone shares the cuisine of much of western Africa, including cassava, yams, plantains, bananas, red palm oil, peanuts and other fruits and vegetables. Fish is an important protein food in coastal areas. One slight difference in cuisine is that the Mende people in southeast Sierra Leone eat rice as the main staple food. Cacao is grown as an export crop to provide the chocolate consumed so eagerly in Europe and North America. One suggestion for sharing the food with young children is to prepare samples of individual ingredients in Sierra Leone cooking. Serve roasted peanuts (being careful with young children because of the choking hazard), sliced bananas, fried plantains and tapioca pudding. Tapioca comes from the processed root of the cassava..

Palmnut (Banga) Soup

Ingredients:

60 - 100 Fresh Palm Nuts	1 Large Onion
2 Large Dried Fish	2 Red Peppers
1 lb. Meat	Salt to taste
4 Large Tomatoes	Water
6 Whole Okra	Boiled Eggs (optional)
1 Cup Shrimps or 6 Crabs (optional)

Steps:

1. Wash the palmnuts, put in a saucepan of water to boil
2. Cut the meat into cubes and cook in a saucepan of salted water until tender
3. Chop onion and pepper, add to the cooked meat and simmer slowly
4. When nuts are soft, remove from the water and pound in a mortar to remove and crush the outer layer. Remove and put in a large bowl, pour boiling water and stir to extract the oil
5. Strain through a sieve and keep the liquid
6. Repeat 4 and 5 until all the oil has been extracted
7. Add the extracted liquid to the meat in the saucepan and cook slowly until most of the water has been extracted and all ingredients are soft
8. Peel and add whole soft boiled eggs, shrimps or crabs as desired
9. Skim of the surplus oil and save for the future

Egusi Soup

500 grams meat
150 grams ground egusi
1 maggi cube (beef bouillon cube)
200 grams stockfish (optional)
100 ml. palm oil
200 g. smoked fish
200 g. tomatoes
10 g. (chili) pepper
25 g. onion
Salt to taste
250 g. vegetable leaves (optional, but if you can lay your hands on washed and ready bitter leaves or "shakpa" (sorrel leaves or flowers) they will do just fine.

Contributed by Dennis Deen-Sie Sawaneh Author of " Sierra Leone Cookbook"

Preparation:

1. Season and boil the meat and the stockfish (if used, has to soaked in hot water and allowed to stand for at least a day/overnight) for about 45 minutes, or until tender. Remove and put aside.
2. Blend/grind the pepper, tomatoes and onion.
3. Heat the palm oil, and add meat, stockfish and the ground/blended ingredients. Cook for about 25 minutes (less without stockfish).
4. Add the ground egusi, maggi cube and fish, and cook for another 10 minutes.
5. Add the vegetable leaves (optional) to the soup.
6. Cook for about 5-10 minutes on low heat. Stir and taste for salt.
7. This sauce can be eaten either with fufu, rice or root vegetables like yam and cassava.

West African Lemony Chicken and Okra Soup

1 large broiler chicken, cut into pieces
½ teaspoon cayenne pepper
Juice from 2 large lemons
2 teaspoons salt
6 cups chicken broth or water
½ cup uncooked long-grain rice
3 tomatoes, peeled and chopped
¼ teaspoon pepper and 1 teaspoon ground turmeric
1 can tomato paste
2 cups sliced okra, fresh or frozen*
1 large onion, peeled, chopped and browned in a little oil

Rub pieces of chicken with juice from lemons. You can remove skin from the pieces if you prefer less fat. Put the pieces in a covered container in the refrigerator to marinate for no more than 30 minutes.

While chicken is marinating, saute the onion in a little oil to make the flavor milder. Set aside. Remove the chicken from the refrigerator. Place the chicken in a large kettle with the chicken broth or water. Bring to a boil, lower the heat and cook slowly, covered, for 12 minutes.

Add onions, tomatoes, tomato paste, rice, spices and salt and pepper. Cook for 30 minutes, until the chicken and rice are tender.

(*An okra note - if you have never cooked with okra, you are in for a new experience. Most recipes, especially West African ones, would call for the okra to be added at this point, as it serves as an excellent thickener for the stew. Some people would prefer to add it at the next step because okra can have a somewhat slimy texture after it stews, although it is usually not too apparent in a dish like this. So add either add it with everything else, or add it in the next step when you return the chicken to the pot. On a linguistic/historical note, the word gumbo, which in the U.S. is a wonderful African inspired creole dish often associated with Louisiana and contains okra, comes from the Angolan word ngombo, meaning okra. The Twi people of Ghana call okra nkuruman)

Remove chicken pieces and debone as soon as they are cool enough to handle. Return the chicken to the kettle (along with the sliced okra if you waited) and stir until everything is well mixed (and the okra is tender). Serve over additional rice, with some fresh fruit for dessert.

Foorah

Ingredients:

2 Cups Rice Flour

1 Cup Sugar

3 Cups Water

Steps:

1. Mix the rice flour in a bowl with about 1 cup of water saving about 1 table spoonful of the flour coating the balls
2. Bring the rest of the water to boil in a saucepan. Add the sugar and stir until dissolved
3. Pour the flour paste gradually into the simmering water and cook, stirring all the time until it forms a thick paste as the rice granules swell
4. When the rice is thoroughly cooked and contains no raw flavor, allow to cool slightly, and remove tablespoonful of the mixture. Form them into balls and coat with the rest of the rice flour
5. Serve cold
6. Milk may be added to the paste during cooking to improve the food value

Fried Plantains

For this recipe, you need 3-4 plantains. You can usually find plantains in supermarkets in larger cities or in Caribbean or Central American markets. They look like large green bananas.

These fried treats are found for sale as snack foods in markets throughout sub-Saharan Africa.. Usually they are just sprinkled with salt and hot sauce (Tabasco works!), but sometimes they are coated with powdered ginger and/or cayenne before frying and then salted. If you prefer a sweet taste, you can sprinkle them with sugar and cinnamon.

Use either peanut, soybean or safflower oil to deep-fry, as they have a high smoking temperature. If you have a cooking thermometer, keep the oil around 350°F. Heat the oil in a heavy saucepan. Slice the peeled plantains into ¼-inch rounds. Fry the slices a few at a time until they are golden and crisp on the outside but still soft on the inside. If fried too long, the inside will toughen, so try to get the best timing. Remove them from the oil with a slotted spoon and drain on paper towels or newspaper.
